The ACCESS research pillar is pleased to announce that we will be holding our first conference regarding key themes relevant to the ACCESS project. These topics include graduate employment, qualification, labor market needs and the role of universities in better helping youth to acquire the skills necessary to enter the work force with confidence.

We are delighted to have an exciting array of speakers and presenters willing to share their expertise, experience, and knowledge on these diverse and challenging sets of topics. Our guests are well known scholars from Germany and from African countries as well.

As the question of graduate employability is indeed one of global consequence, such a diverse set of voices offers a rare and exciting change for discussion, collaboration, and idea sharing.

The login information as well as an email address to direct your questions can be found below.

For more information, please see www.access-centre.org.

ACCESS is funded by the DAAD in the programme "University Excellence in Development Cooperation (exceed)".
